February 2010

Dear Class of 2003:

We can't believe 2010 is here and January has already come and gone. It seems like yesterday we arrived on campus as freshman to listen as President Ford addressed our class rung us in as a historic class.

Now, over 10 years later, we lead established lives all over the country and world as doctors, lawyers, business professionals, educators and artists. Our imprint as a class at Wabash is firm and the college needs our help to spread the fame of her honored name. Specifically what we'd like to ask of you in this class letter is to help with recruiting efforts at the college.

Colleges That Change Lives:

Do you remember when Wabash was identified in Loren Pope's Book "Colleges that Change Lives?" Do you remember how it felt to be associated with such a place that earned recognition by this respected organization?

Well the colleges identified in the book have teamed together to go on a nationwide college fair tour.

Provided is some great information about those colleges, including Wabash and the information behind why each school was selected. You'll be able to find when the tour may be running through an area in which you live in case you want to stop by and say hello to the Wabash team.

This leads to...helping the College with recruiting efforts:

One of the real opportunities you have to support the college is with its recruiting efforts. Attached below is the web-link to Wabash's website where you can refer students you feel would be a good fit for Wabash. It only takes a few minutes to fill out the needed information to have a member of the admissions team contact your referred student.

Please use this as you think about students who you would like to see attend Wabash.

Class Notes:

Joshua Wilson 2003 (joshua.wilson03 - joshuawilson5274@gmail.com) has submitted the following class note online...

Greetings; I changed jobs in December of 2009 and became an R&D manager for Carlisle Tire & Wheel. I am temporarily located in Carlisle, PA the burial site of the Revolutionary War Hero, Molly Pitcher. It is one of the few places I've lived that predate Wabash College and I have enjoyed the richness of the local heritage as much as I did Wabash's. By the summer of 2010, I will be relocating permanently to Jackson, TN which is about half way between Memphis & Nashville. If you find yourself in the area, be sure to reach out. You can reach me at 731-394-6735. Best regards, Joshua Wilson Class of 2003

Closing:

We look forward to hearing from you more in the future! Please provide us your class updates...who's getting married, having children, being promoted or changing careers??? Let us know. We want to celebrate you.

In Wabash,

Scott, Karl and Kip
